

Exactly What You Think It Is

More of the Same

14. Odessa has expressed uncertainty over the tendency to interpret the work of women in terms of their lives.

Acknowledgements

Some of the Many Things Mother Never Did for Me:

- Mother never told me what I could or couldn't be.
- Mother never told me not to be an artist.
- Mother never told me what (or what not) to wear.
- Mother never made me wear a bra.
- Mother never pressured me to marry.
- Mother never expressed a longing for me to have children.
- Mother never said that she wanted me to have another.
- Mother never regretted that I became an artist.

Tremendous thanks go out to Faith Wilding, Gregg Bordowitz, Cynthia Atwood, Kristin Humbargar, Jean Chamberlin Hastings, Oscar Samuel Hastings, Jr., Harriett Ann Hastings, Charlie Brennaman, all my other siblings and their significants, Jessica Lutz, G. Roy Levin, Nina Parris, Steven Kurtz, and Johanna Drucker. And most of all, enormous gratitude goes to Bjørn Akselsen, August Layne Akselsen, Cosimo & Viola. I could never have done "it" without them.

Probing the mind/machine interface is exciting, but it is not going to solve our problems, clean our houses, or make our children breakfast when we've been up at the computer all night.

"Are you a Cyborg?" is a heavily modified, elaborated, expanded version of a questionnaire written by Alexander Chislenko in "Legacy Systems and Functional Cyborgization of Humans" (1995), http://www.eff.org/pub/Net_culture/Cyborg_anthropology

The content, direction, and outcome of this work were guided, nurtured, and improved upon by Faith Wilding and Gregg Bordowitz. Without their generosity of time, mind and heart it would not exist.
